

Discovery

My topic is about the 13 names every web designer should know. It is basically a site dedicated to all of the designers who have influenced or developed web design in many important ways. I plan on using the photos and the twitter links for each designer directly from the website. The pictures for the twitter I will use their current picture featured on their accounts.

Website Discovery

I will be using a full browser slider for my website. Each designer will go on a panel of their own. The twitter button will open a modal with a current picture of the designers twitter picture and a direct link to their twitter page. Each panel of the slider will have a image of the designer and a small biography about who they are and what they do and the twitter modal button.
