

Discovery Statement

The elements to be included are a picture of myself, the Macomb logo, a sentence or two talking about what this page is, and a statement about myself. My overall dominant element will be my picture and name followed by the text descriptions.

My favorite thing about this template is the way it displays the content boxes, with the hovering. I also LOVE the gradients. I would love to try to keep the structure with having the proper number of boxes on the bottom and what compliments with them!

The navigation on my host page is very attractive and easy to use! They simply fade in with a nice gradient to identify where you are looking at.

Fortunately, the template also came with the ability to be RESPONSIVE! It collapses very nicely. When it is sized for mobile, the topic boxes shrink down to a single column and then are a three-column grid in a desktop setting.

Well as we all know already; pink is my favorite color! So naturally my header is a pink gradient. Followed by the different color gradient for the titles of my project! I also picked a beautiful font, Georgia, that I adore for the text. All my text is going to be white so it is vibrant against the bright colors.

Content Item:	Content Type:
My name	Bold in the header with the image, description, and mcc logo
Course name	Paired with the description on the header with image, mcc logo
My statement	Paragraph in header
My identity	Image of me!
Mcc logo	Under the paragraph; complementary to the colors (purple)
Projects boxes	Main; in columns of three; has a hover included
Project identification	Screenshot of the project on the page; able to click to open!
Scroll Down button	Bottom of header to direct people down the projects; CTA
